1. Description and organization of the collection

Reference code NO KTM 1998-001

1.1 The Bengt Danielsson Library and Archives

Bengt Emmerik Danielsson (06.07. 1921 – 04.07. 1997), was a Swedish born anthropologist, writer, political activist, and adventurer. He spent most of his life in Papehue, on Tahiti in French Polynesia. His lengthy political resistance against French nuclear testing on the Moruroa atoll in the Tuamotu Islands would in the end overshadow his fame as a member of Thor Heyerdahl's Kon-Tiki Expedition in 1947.

Upon his death, the remainder of his book collection, archives, and photo archive were transferred from Tahiti to The Kon-Tiki Museum in Oslo, Norway. Danielsson's book collection was given as a testamentary gift to the Kon-Tiki Museum in 1979, but only transferred to the museum in the fall of 1998. The archives and photo collection was donated to The Kon-Tiki Museum by Marie Therese Danielsson, his widow in the fall of 1998. It arrived in 208 numbered boxes (see Appendix 1).

1.2 A short portrait of Bengt Danielsson

Bengt Emmerik Danielsson was born July 6th 1921 in Krokek, Östergötland, not far from Norrköping in the southeastern part of Sweden on the Baltic sea. His mother, following his father's death moved to Norrköping when Bengt was only six years old. In his early years, he enjoyed being active in athletics and in particular running. Early on he began working as a journalist during summer vacations, before he started his undergraduate studies in American sociology and social psychology, at Gothenburg University College during World War II. During his studies, he also developed his love for writing as several manuscripts for theatre plays and a novel in his archive testifies to.

In 1946 a young Bengt Danielsson joined the Finnish-Swedish Amazon Expedition to study the Jivaro Indians. On the Norwegian ship M/S Martin Bakke Danielsson and the rest of the expedition team were brought to Ecuador. Through studies in Seattle from the autumn of 1947 he produced the sociometric thesis Some Attraction and Repulsion Patterns among Jibaro Indians published in Sociometry (Vol. 12:1/3) in 1949. However, collaboration within the expedition itself did not meet with success and Bengt Danielsson traveled on to Lima, Peru where he met Thor Heyerdahl and Herman Watzinger. He signed on as the only non-Norwegian crewmember on the Kon-Tiki raft on its journey from Callao, Peru, to Raroia atoll in the Tuamotu group.

In November 1949 Bengt Danielsson together with his wife Marie Therese, who he had met in Lima, returned to the small atoll of Raroia where the Kon-Tiki raft had crash-landed back in 1947. He returned to study the small island community and do an acculturation study for his Ph.D. which he received in 1955 at Uppsala University. His dissertation was later published by Allen & Unwin with the title Work and Life on Raroia: An Acculturation Study from the Tuamotu Group, French Oceania (1953). Bengt Danielsson participated in a number of expeditions besides the Kon-Tiki Expedition in 1947: The Tuamotu Expedition 1949-51, the Pacific Science Board Expedition in 1952, Expedition to Western Polynesia in 1953,

Around Australia 1955-56, Vanderbilt Foundation expedition to the Society Islands in 1957, and Sveriges Radio's TV expedition to the South Pacific Ocean in 1962. He was the director of Sweden's National Ethnographic Museum in Gothenburg from 1966 to 1971. From 1972, he worked as the director of Centre Culturel on Tahiti, and was closely involved in establishing a new museum there.

In the early 1950s, Bengt and Marie-Thérèse Danielsson travelled extensively, spending one year on Hiva Oa in the Marquesas group, one year in Australia and in Europe, before they settled down in Papehue on the island of Tahiti, where he was appointed Swedish Consul in the 1970s. During his Tahitian years Bengt Danielsson co-wrote and edited a six-volume book on the history of Tahiti, Le Mémorial polynésien and was a prolific correspondent for Pacific Islands Monthly. Danielsson also connected with the emerging independence movement on Tahiti. When the French took up nuclear-testing on Moruroa atoll in the Tuamotuan group in 1966 Bengt Danielsson actively joined the local protests and together with his wife Marie-Thérèse, he wrote Mururoa – mon amour (1974).

After the Kon-Tiki Expedition he divided his time between writing popular books about his travels and adventures in the Pacific, including children's fiction, and his career as an anthropologist. Bengt Danielsson wrote several books on his own travels with Den lyckliga ön (The happy Island) about his one-year stay on Raroia in 1949-50. His best seller was Love in the South Seas (1956), closely followed by What happened on the Bounty (1963), and Gauguin in the South Seas (1965).

Bengt Danielsson died in July 1997 in Sweden.

3. The collections

The document archive of Bengt Danielsson is a rich trove of information on his work and life. It may be divided broadly into two topics. The first, his manuscripts, correspondence, and notes from his work in Polynesian ethnography. The second, manuscripts, correspondence, documents, and notes about political life in French Polynesia, focusing mainly on the nuclear test program carried out on Mururoa atoll in the Tuamotu group. Marie Therese Danielsson has contributed extensively to the latter and co-wrote the book Mururoa – mon amour (1974). The archives also contain his personal notes and correspondence. It may be nice to mention that one of these stacks of letters are the evidence of a life-long correspondence with his mother.

After the collections arrived at the Kon-Tiki Museum, most of the archive material were unpacked, organized, and stored in the main library. The library section of Bengt Danielsson's collection, also in the main library, were catalogued in 2003 by Olaug Irene Andreassen in a FileMaker Pro 5.0 database. However, the archive was not described nor catalogued, due to the fact that a substantial portion of the documents are in French. In 2016 the Kon-Tiki Museum was contacted by O.E. Johannes Stenberg, who wanted to research Bengt Danielsson's archive connected to Tahitian politics and the French nuclear-testing on Moruroa. He offered to help cataloguing part of the archive during October and November 2016, and his work forms the main part of this publication. A portion of the archive were catalogued in detailed and the rest was sorted in thematic groups, according to the archive classification devised by the museum and repacked in 68 numbered new archive boxes, and additionally 158 folders with sorted material, by Bengt and Marie-Thérèse Danielsson, were numbered.

Bengt Danielsson's photo archive consists of photos from his extensive research and travels in the Pacific and from his travels in the rest of the world. There are 158 boxes (standard 100 slides cases) and 471 smaller boxes (standard 36 slides cases) from these travels that are numbered. The collection also consists of photos from his publications, and photos documenting his involvement with local Tahitian politics. Of course, there are also private and family photos in this collection. The organization of this collection is very basic at the moment, meaning that researchers who intend to visit the museum and access the archive will have to go through boxes and folders manually to find individual documents.

Bengt Danielsson collected books all his life. His library spans the topics of Pacific ethnography, general sociology, books on the French painter Paul Gauguin and his times, boks and papers on nuclear test (in French Polynesia and other places), and, of course, Bengt Danielsson's own books. It consists of 6.540 books, journals, and offprints. Most of the collection are organized and easy to access.

3.1 The preliminary organization of the archive documents

The base is an enumeration of boxes and folders starting with number 2000. It represents a first attempt at finding out what the contents of such a large archive actually are. It is, by no means the ultimate version, since the Museums ambition is, time and resources permitting, to reach a satisfactory scientific degree of accuracy and traceability in its classification and registering of the Bengt Danielsson Archive.

2000 – 2099 Level I. Unsorted material

A very first and preliminary classification. It consists of 68 archive boxes with material only roughly sorted into thematic groups corresponding to the future categories of the archive. In addition, 158 folders which have kept Bengt Danielsson's own classification have been numbered and located in thematic groups.

2100 – 2599 Level II. Steel Cases Folders

Hanging folders kept in steel-case drawers. The classification of items is made by Bengt Danielsson himself. The contents of these folders is defined more narrowly, but overlaps are quite frequent and the same issue may come back several times.

2600 – 2999 Level III. Folders with material sorted and analyzed more in detail

The material has been taken out, either from 2000-2099 series or 2100 – 2599 series and has, after analysis and listing, been transferred to folders numbered 2600 – 2999. Each box holds a small number of folders. The numbers of the folders are written on each box. Each folder then holds a number of exhibits which are, in turn, numbered from 1 upwards.

3000 – Onward Level IV. Material sorted in detail by category and catalogued. Boxes numbered.

This material has been taken from boxes delivered to KTM, opened and commented on by Anna Källén 1999 (appendix 1), Level 1 boxes 2000-2099 with unsorted material and Folders and boxes K-225, Shelf 9 and 10 sorted by Reidar Solsvik nov 2016.

1000-1021 Level V. Boxes with sorted, categorized and unregistered material. The material is sorted in larger boxes by categories 1-16. It is not registered in detail and the numbers range from 1000. The material is to be registered in detail and catalogued under Level IV.

4. General classification for future use

Title: Bengt Danielsson's Archive

Dates of creation: c. 1920s

Dates of accumulation: 1935-1997

Extent and medium of the unit of description (quantity, bulk or size):
boxes sorted by categories, containing folders with the documents

The collections remain to a great extent in the state it was received, sorted into Bengt and Marie-Thérèse's own categories. The book collection has shelved and a catalogue exists. The photo collection remains unsorted except for Bengt Danielsson's own system and some very preliminary work. One small part of the document archive has been ordered and sorted into boxes, and a list of documents follows. The main part has been very roughly sorted into categories following the archive categories beneath. The result: 68 boxes with the addition 158 folders are unsorted in categories.

5.1 List of folders and boxes, K-225, Shelf 9 and 10

List of folders and boxes re-sorted by Reidar Solsvik, Nov 2016.

Comment: On November 25th, Reidar Solsvik moved important folders and boxes from KTM-204 to K-225, to collect all important folder and boxes that have been taken out of original transport cases of the Bent Danielsson collection. This follows the work of O.E. Johannes Stenberg in October and November of 2016, in which he categorized some of Bengt Danielsson's archive in detail and temporarily sorted according to categories and boxed a large part of the archive that had been unpacked in 2005.

2607 – Prison mutiny Tahiti 1978-1980

Inspired by independence leader Charlie Ching

Content summary: Mutiny of 8 prisoners in “luxury prison” in Tahiti leads to two deaths, said to be inspired by Independence leader Charlie Ching. The Tahiti court is overruled in Versailles 2 years later – articles give a highly political dimension to this court case.

2608 – Anti-nuclear “Fleet for Peace” 1995

Te Itihai no te Hau 1995

Content summary: This movement protests Chiracs decision to restart nuclear tests 1995. MTD is actively involved, and so is OSCAR TEMARU. The first demonstration in June goes badly, the movement then associates with Church who has more experience in organizing peaceful marches. Plans are made for sailing towards Moruru, apparently together with Greenpeace. A boycott of international sports events is followed by West Samoa.

2613 – Falsified or doctored map 1986

Réponse a l'amdmiral Thireaut

Contents summary: This map – showing nuclear pollution and dangerous zones at Moruroa - is a key item, that keeps coming back in various contexts. It was established by Military authorities already in 1980 for internal purposes, but BD/MTD somehow got hold of it and published it. Angry denials from military. Newspaper clippings around the interesting fight concerning a map of Moruroa and the nuclear pollution there. This is one of the few times BD/MTD are mentioned in the press. The CEP chief, admiral Thireau, claims the map is a falsification. Opposition leader OT has shown it at an international ecology conference in Vienna 1986. BD/MTD answer that it is the admirals map that has been doctored. SEE ALSO ITEM 21 in 2309, where it comes back as late as October 1995, published by Le Monde.

2620 – Articles and photos after publishing of Moruroa, notre Bome Coloniale

Second edition 1993

Abbreviations:

F French, E English, T Tahitian, S Swedish languages

FP = French Polynesia

GF = Gaston Flosse, influential FP political leader and President of FP, close friend of Chirac

AT = Assemblée Territoriale, the Polynesian local Parliament

POU = Pouvaana (Polynesian Independence Leader)

OT = Oscar Temaru, political leader of political party Tavini Huiraatira, president of FP? – leftist party, pro-independence, against CEP

CEP = Centre d'Experimentations du Pacifique (France nuclear test programme in Polynesia)

CEA = Commissariat à l'Énergie Atomique, French top organisation to which CEP belongs

Art = newspaper article

BD = Bengt Danielsson MTD = Marie-Thérèse Danielsson

Content summary: Folder 2620 contains a lot of newspaper cuttings on the vacuum created in Polynesia after President Mitterand had ordered a nuclear test moratorium. The whole Polynesian economy had been built on the CEP tests. Under-employment, financial difficulties, social unrest, increased criminality, even number of car accidents rapidly followed. BD also closely follows the political development in France: Michel Rocard restarting the Socialist party, and eventually the election of Mitterand as president. Yeltsin and Bush signing START 2 is equally followed, as are political developments in other island-nations, particularly New Caledonia.

It is remarkable that none of all these clippings ever mention the name of BD/MTD, confirming the impression of Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber that they preferred to remain anonymous – at least until the book, “Moruroa mon amour” was published.

2621 – Le moratoire des essais et la reprise en 1995

(Moratorium and restart of nuclear tests)

Contents summary: BD and MTD are directly mentioned and concerned in Items nr 1,2,5,6, 11, 60, 64, 69, 79. Large number of clippings, particularly from 1993 reflect intense political debate on whether to prolong test moratorium or prolong the tests, both in France and elsewhere. Situation confusing with Mitterrand against and Chirac strongly in favour. Gaston Flosse warns against loss of goodwill for France. Finally, Chirac comes to power and decides June 13th, 1995 – against world opinion – to continue the tests, triggering many and strong reactions.

2622 – Letters and fax about nuclear-bomb tests from 1995

Letters and faxes about testing of atomic bombs from 1995 onwards

Contents summary: French restarting of nuclear tests create strong opinion around the world. This is reflected by the very many requests for interviews, information or assistance with contacts coming from many parts of the world, esp. NZ, Sweden and Norway. Particularly interesting is the folder, exh. 10, covering Swedish then Minister of Culture Margot Wallströms visit to Papeete, where – sent by the Swedish Socialdemocratic Party – she angered the French President by participating in a protest march. Later the Swedish PM Ingvar Carlsson was refused a state visit to France. Exh. 38 links daughter Maruias death (she died of melanoma) with radiation, but BD's answer to the question is unknown as that page is missing. Exh. 56 is unusual in its angry tone.

2625 – Pouvaana a Oopa OOPA

Oopa is leader of Polynesian Independence movement, national hero

Contents summary: Material on POU who is national hero in FP. BD has written a chapter on him, and he frequently comes back in the Moruroa book because of his paramount political importance. Born 1895 he enrolled 1916 in WW I, fights for France, becomes a war hero and is called “father” – metua – by FP. Starts political party RDPT = Rassemblement democratique des populations tahitiennes which successfully gets 18 out of 25 seats in local Parliament, AT. POU is difficult to handle for the French administration. Repeatedly harassed and arrested, finally in October 1958 on trumped-up charges deported to France, for 9 years. AT disavows POU in a decision Oct 18. 1958 – exh 58. Physically weakened at his return, he unexpectedly recovers and becomes a strong political force.

Of special interest are exhibits 6, where POU addresses the AT in Tahitian language, and the history written in Tahitian, exhibit 8, by Pouvaana.

Exhibit 23 – full court proceedings, exh 26 – minutes of parliamentary debate, exh 27 POU official grace document, exh 29 is a moving document written by POU himself. Exh 31 is a secret report to the Governor, concluding that POU’s popularity mostly reflects the economic needs of a population with many needs. Exh 48 is Teariki mourning speech at POU’s funeral, a moving document.

Exh 51 is a well formulated French analyses of situation around 1950. Exh 56 lists a number of well documented examples of French administration abuse.

Danielsson, otherwise conspicuously absent from news (is that a deliberate french policy?), is quoted in a small letter to the editor, exh. 92.

A large number of exhibits deal with a constant wish to rehabilitate POU and his process. His birthdays and day of return to FP are celebrated every year. Exh 99 hopes for a break-through with discovery of new evidence.

Exh. 103 is a collection of whole newspapers and articles covering the amnesty and eventual return of POU to FP in Oct 1968.

Autour de livre (first edition 1974)

Comment: Exhibit 2. The first edition of “Moruroa, mon amour” was launched 1974 and this folder contains reactions to the book, starting with BD/MTD being attacked by a Professor Guiart, president of the Societe des Oceanistes association. A debate follows, where interestingly there is an endorsement POU publicly gives BD/MD, together with Francis Sanford. Several other book reviews, in the two local newspapers of course, but very little in French press. Exhibit 8 is a note from Mitterrand, not yet President, thanking BD for book – original in a previous box. Exh 26 is a handwritten letter threatening BD/TD with revenge.

2635 - Faaite 1987 events. 4 people burnt, 2 massacred in exorcism

Comments: Tragic events of religious nature that happened in the Tuamotu island Faaite Sept 2 – 4 1987. The population of 150 people is used to a severe type of Catholicism when three womenpriests from a Charismatic Movement arrives and teaches new dramatic ways to pray. These women leave the island but confer their “mana” power over to 8 young men who trigger exorcism rituals whereby 4 people are burned alive and two massacred. The event not only leads to legal consequences in Criminal Court of Papeete but also to much self-analysis: on the role of religion, on the challenges when French and Polynesian cultures meet, where also dr. Bruno Saura gets involved.
